

Streaming live Nov. 19-20: What does the changing global energy situation mean to the US military

Confronting new realities, SSI conference examines Energy Security in the 2010s and implications for the U.S. military

Streaming live Nov. 19-20: What does the changing global energy situation mean to the US military --

<http://m.youtube.com/watch?feature=c4-feed-lsb&v=bBKsLIT02B0#>

For two days, leading experts will address the question, what is the state of global energy supplies and energy security -- and what can that mean for the U.S. military? The conference is open to the public at the ROA Minuteman Memorial Buidling in Washington D.C.

Changes in consumption, technological changes, and a host of social, political and economic challenges will have implications for the U.S. global strategy, and for the U.S. military. Katherine Hammack Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations, Energy and Environment -- and -- Sharon Burke, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Opeational Energy Plans and Program, are the lunchtime keynote speakers for Tuesday and Wednesday, respectively.

The USAWC Press will produce a quick-turn publication of two-page executive summaries for decision-makers, as well as an edited volume of contributor comments and papers.

The Strategic Studies Institute and USAWC Press is partnering with the ROA Defense Education Forum for this event.