

Two police officers recognized for excellence

Two police officers recognized for excellence

Two Carlisle Barracks police officers were recognized for excellence and promoted to the rank of sergeant on Oct. 20 during a ceremony hosted by Police Chief Paul Heinlein and director of emergency services Bob Suskie.

Eric A. Williams, who started here in July 2010, started as a patrolman was appointed as the Traffic Accident Investigator earlier this year. Eric previously served as an Army MP from 2010-2013.

Christopher Archdeacon, started working at Carlisle Barracks as a guard in 2014 and was hired as a police officer later that year. Chris served in the United States Air Force Security Force from 2001 to 2007.