

Carlisle Barracks hosts holiday event for exceptional family members

By Thomas Zimmerman 11 January 2018

The Carlisle Barracks Exceptional Family Member Program hosted an event at Army Community Services, affording kids an opportunity to sit with Santa or have a family photo in a quiet and less sensory overstimulating environment, according to Kelly Vil

The holidays can be overwhelming for everyone, especially those family members who may be easily overstimulated by the lines, crowds and hustle and bustle of malls at holiday time.

The Carlisle Barracks Exceptional Family Member Program hosted an event at Army Community Services, affording kids an opportunity to sit with Santa or have a family photo in a quiet and less sensory overstimulating environment, according to Kelly Villalobos, manager of the post EFMP program.

“At the same time it is a chance for parents to meet and share with other parents experiencing similar situations and have some comradery with peers,” she said.

U.S. Army War College News Archives