

Army War College Commandant to salute top educators

By Thomas Zimmerman 25 April 2018

Army War College leaders and parents will honor top educators of the region's five school districts, Grace Baptist School, and Saint Patrick's School, while celebrating a strong commitment to and selfless support of military children.

Army War College leaders and parents will honor top educators of the region's five school districts, Grace Baptist School, and Saint Patrick's School, while celebrating a strong commitment to and selfless support of military children. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John Kem will host the Excellence in Education Reception in their home, Quarters One, Monday, April 30 at 6 p.m.

Medhavari (Annie) Singh, a graduating senior at Carlisle High School and daughter of Indian Brig. Shrinjay Pratap Singh, an International Fellow in the Army War College Class of 2018, will be the guest speaker for this year's event. The Army War College is sponsoring the eighth annual reception to highlight the unique relationship between schools and the military children who live a challenging life of many moves and many school transitions.

The exceptional principals, teachers, and counselors who educate military children have been identified for honors by the superintendents of Carlisle, Big Spring, Cumberland Valley, Mechanicsburg and South Middleton school districts, Grace Baptist School, and Saint Patrick's School. On a daily basis, administrators, teachers, coaches and counselors have shown commitment to military children and other children whose parents live a transient life through thoughtful policies and a relentless focus on children's success and well-being.
