

Students share graduation day of celebration with faculty: 5 Teaching Awards announced

Students share graduation day of celebration with faculty: 5 Teaching Awards announced

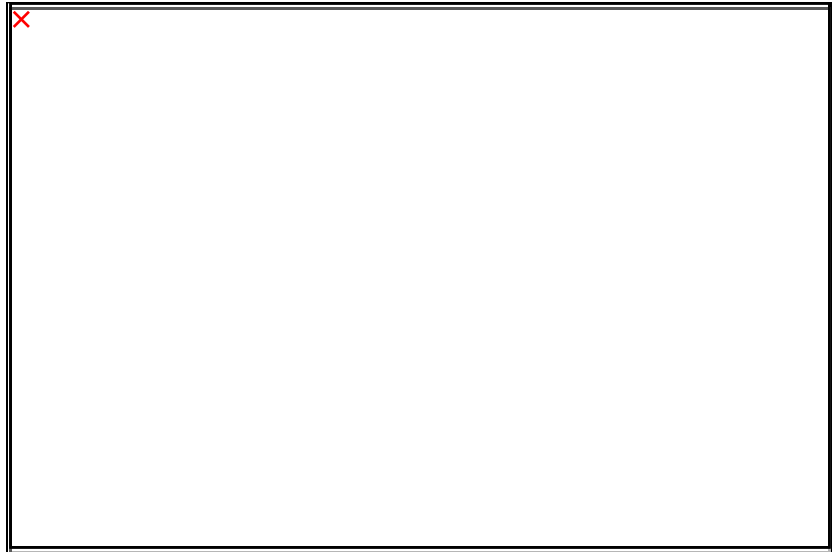

June 5, 2015 -- After the procession of faculty and leadership ... before the graduation remarks by Chief of Staff Gen. Raymond Odierno ... before the award of almost 400 USAWC diplomas and, for many graduates, the Master's degree in Strategic Studies, the College leadership focused the audience's attention on the top faculty of the School of Strategic Landpower.

The Excellence-in-Teaching awards co-exist with Faculty Excellence-in-Service and Excellence-in-Scholarship awards, presented to the full body of students and faculty, May 29. Together, they embody the aspiration for faculty in three standards of excellence. The Faculty Excellence-in-Teaching Awards incorporate the assessments of students themselves – the beneficiaries of commitment, expertise and guidance from all faculty.

Today's the College celebrated these award recipients for Excellence-in-Teaching for the core courses and electives:

COL William B. Maddox, Department of National Security and Strategy

COL Frederick J. Gellert,

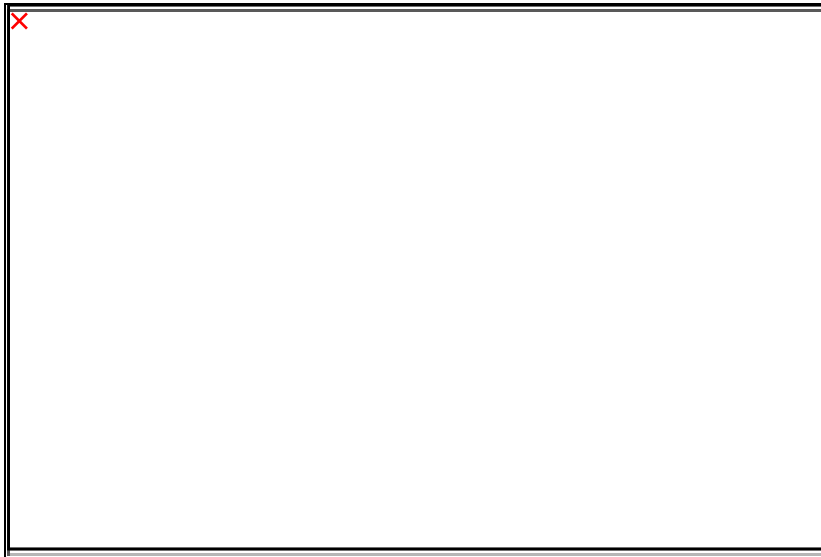

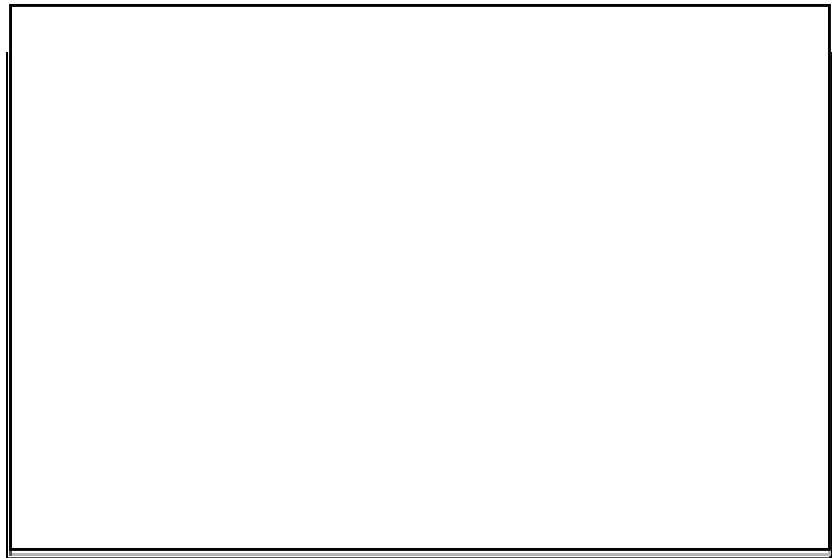

Department of Command, Leadership, and Management

COL Tarn D. Warren,
Department of Military Strategy, Planning and Operations.

Dr. Paul C. Jussel, elective course instruction

Prof. Steve Kidder, elective course instruction.

Above, Col. William Maddox with Dean Dr. Richard Lacquement; below that, Col. Fred Gellert with Commandant Maj. Gen. Bill Rapp.

Left, Col. Tarn Warren with Commandant Maj. Gen. Bill Rapp.

Prof. Steve Kidder (below left) and Dr. Paul Jussel (below right) greet Chief of Staff of the Army Gen. Raymond Odierno, after receiving awards of Excellence-in-Teaching.

U.S. Army War College Archives - News Article - 05 June 2015

