Carlisle Barracks civilian employees, Soldier recognized for excellence

A few members of Team Carlisle were recently recognized for their hard work and dedication by Lt. Col. Greg Ank, garrison commander.

Cora Johnson, Financial Readiness Program Manager at the Army Community Services was presented an Achievement Medal for Civilian Service for her work with Army Emergency Relief and the other financial management program at ACS. She passed the 2015 Army Community Service (ACS) Accreditation evaluation with 100% compliance in the Financial Readiness Program, 100% compliance in Army Emergency Relief and 100% compliance in the Army Family Team Building Program. The evaluators specifically recognized Johnson as one of the top performing Financial Readiness counselors in the United States Army.

Tom Vinette, the Installation Antiterrorism Officer, was presented a Commander's Award for Civilian Service for his work with the posts' force protection program, which including the establishing of a building managers program and continued implementation of the Random Access Measures throughout the installation.

Spc. Peter Heikkinen, Carlisle Barracks Chaplain Assistant, recently helped design a new motto and logo for the Carlisle Barracks Headquarters Detachment. "Iron Sharpens Iron," reflects the mutually beneficial relationship that Soldiers and NCO's have with each other as they continue in the Army careers, through both formal and informal mentorship and professional development. Capt. Shavayey Cato, HHD Commander and Ank presented him with a certificate of appreciation during the unveiling of the new logo and motto in Shughart Hall.
