

Navy triumphs over Army in flag football

Staff Sgt. Corey Baltos, USAWC Public Affairs

Navy triumphs over Army

Dec. 7, 2010 - When Army and Navy meet, there is no other game with deeper foundations or greater prestige. Through many years of intense cheers, unforgettable plays and climatic moments, the Army/Navy rivalry has been etched into the minds of countless fans and followers. All it takes is for a group of Soldiers to meet a group of Sailors and Marines on an open field with a football.

Col. Ricky Love, the Army quarterback, runs with the ball. Photo by

Staff Sgt. Corey Baltos

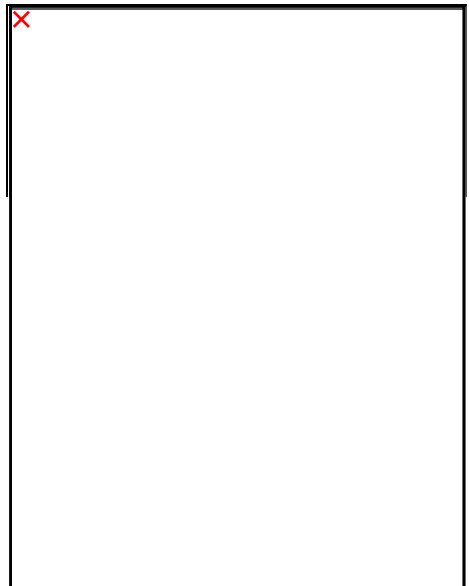

On a blistering cold day in December those two groups met on Indian Field at the Army War College to play a game of flag football.

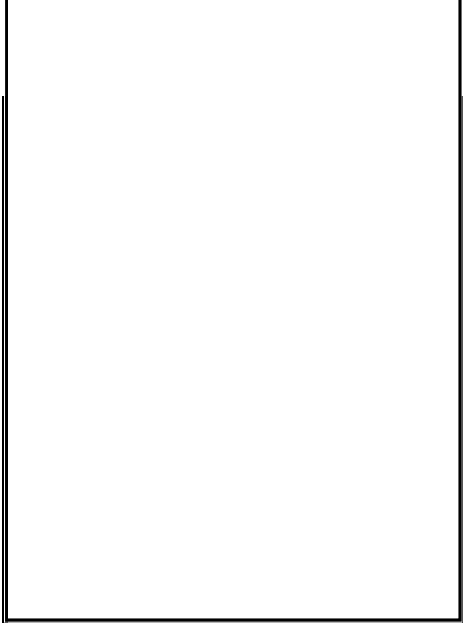

The game, which featured a color guard from Carson Long Military Academy, a band from Boiling Springs High School and tailgating, was truly a slice of Americana.

“We want to show the International Fellow’s what a traditional American football game and tailgate is all about,” said Liz Knouse, director of the Carlisle Barracks Family, Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

While Army obtained an early lead, Navy was able to rally and beat Army 19-6.

For more photos:

<http://www.facebook.com/home.php?#!/album.php?aid=262097&id=113116603681>

Marine Col. Tray Ardese, the Navy quarterback, runs with the ball. Photo by Staff Sgt. Corey Baltos

U.S. Army War College Archives - News Article - 08 December 2010