U.S. Army Major General Robert Brown Opens Carson Long Leadership Lecture Series

NEW BLOOMFIELD, Pa. – U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Robert B. Brown will be the featured speaker as Carson Long Military Academy begins its Leadership Lecture Series on Monday, May 7.

This event is open to the public.

Maj. Gen. Brown is the commanding officer of the U.S. Army Maneuver Center of Excellence at Fort Benning, Ga. He will speak on leadership and teamwork during the event held in the Carson Long campus chapel.

A reception catered by Little's Catering will be held at 6 p.m. in the Maples, with the lecture series set to begin at 7 p.m.

"It is an honor and a privilege to have a distinguished speaker such as Major General Brown to open the Leadership Lecture Series," said Col. Matthew Brown, President of Carson Long Military Academy, the oldest boarding school in the United States that still provides military training. "Major General Brown's leadership skills have been evident as he commanded soldiers at all echelons of the military service. Leadership and character are core values we focus on every day with our cadets. Major General Brown brings a unique perspective that we believe will resonate with the audience."

Maj. Gen. Brown also served as an advisor to the USA Olympic basketball team as the group prepared for the 2008 Beijing, China, Olympic Games.

Brown was a four-time letterman at Army from 1978-81 under Coach Mike Krzyzewski, now a legendary coach at Duke University and head of the U.S. National Team.
