Army Heritage Days returns bigger than ever

The U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center is excited to announce its annual Army Heritage Days Event is back this year and bigger than ever. This year's event features an expanded look at World War I and showcases living historians representing Soldiers from before the French and Indian War through the Vietnam War. After a hiatus, more than 200 re-enactors from all periods are eager to return to the Army Heritage Trail to bring Army history alive once again.

Throughout the two day event, historical equipment, vehicles, gear, and live demonstrations will fill the USAHEC's Army Heritage Trail. New additions in 2014 include the unique experience of a World War I bi-plane flyover, and a two-day military music tattoo program, featuring performances of military and patriotic music by local and historical bands. While Army Heritage Days will feature exciting new programming, some favorites from the past several years will return, including the used book sale, the children's passport activity, and the meet and greet with Army veterans from WWII through current operations.
