The Carlisle Barracks Education Center has a new leader who is aiming to re-energize the center and offering more robust educational opportunities for Soldiers.

Rebecca Sober assumed duties as the Education Services Specialist for the Army Continuing Education System here earlier this month. Rebecca began working for ACES in 2009 as a Guidance Counselor at Fort Riley, Kansas and moved to Carlisle in 2012 and served as the Education Services Specialist/Federal Tuition Assistance Manager for the Pennsylvania National Guard, before coming here.

A product of the ACES program herself, Sober earned her degree through the University of Maryland University College - European Division while stationed in Stuttgart, Germany.

Rebecca has been a lifelong military family member -- her father served 21 years in the United States Marine Corps and her husband, Lt. Col. Matt Sober, is currently serving as the Professor of Military Science at Shippensburg University in Shippensburg, PA.

She said she was excited to assume her new duties and serve the Soldiers, Family Members, and Civilians of the Army War College and Carlisle Barracks.

“Without access to a functioning education center, Soldiers have been rerouted to other Army education centers to receive services,” she said.

Soldiers stationed at Carlisle Barracks or across the state can take advantage of an array of services at the Carlisle Barracks Education Center which include but are not limited to -- career and educational counseling, testing services, college transcript evaluations, GI Bill and Veterans Affairs information to include transferring Post 9/11 GI Bill benefits and using benefits, Federal Tuition Assistance Program counseling to include navigating the GoArmyEd portal and requesting Tuition Assistance, financial aid counseling, in and out-processing of the installation, and educational benefits briefings.

The education center is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. – 4 p.m. Testing services are by appointment only.
