

Missed Army Heritage Days?

Missed Army Heritage Days?

For our community members that missed this weekend's great turn out and festivities known as Army Heritage Days, or the opening of the Army History and Education Center's new exhibit titled "Treasures of USAHEC, are reminded you may always visit the Army Heritage Trail which serves as USAHEC's outdoor museum and is open dawn to dusk daily and to also visit the Soldier Experience Gallery along with "Treasures of USAHEC" during regular museum hours.

1st Lt. Robert L. Aston's flight Jacket who served as a navigator on a B24 Liberator with the 44th Bomb Group in 1944. Aston's jacket includes a Walt Disney Studios designed 67th Squadron Patch. USAHEC Treasures exhibit, May 16.

This receipt copy shows the chain of responsibility of the atomic bomb "little Boy," that was dropped from the B-29

Superfortress Enola Gay over Hiroshima Japan, from Dr. Norman Ramsey, lead scientist of the Atomic Bomb construction team, to Brig. Gen. Thomas Farrell, field operations commander of Tinian Island Air Strip and lastly, to Capt. Parsons, mission commander of the B29.

a young re-anactor sits in a aircraft mock up depicting a WWII airborne papatrooper and all thier equipment before they jumped from the aircraftover Europe duirng airborne operations, AHEC, Army Heritage Days, May 16

A WWII Cpl. stands with hands on hips and hand gernades strapped to his chest as he waits in a mock up of a vehicle maintenance area AHEC, Army Heritage Days, May 16

Army Heritage Days included nearly 300 reactors from different periods of U.S. Army history, displays of equipment, and demonstrations of cavalry encampments and artillery tactics.

U.S. Army War College Archives - News Article - 18 May 2015