

Construction on AHEC Visitors Center continues

Thomas Zimmerman, Army War College Public Affairs Office

Construction on AHEC Visitors Center continues

*With the snow behind us for good, construction continues on the Army Heritage and Education Center's Visitor and Education Center. Shown here is the side of the VEC as it connects to Ridgway Hall. Work on the outside is nearly complete. The building construction is expected to be complete by the end of June .
Courtesy photo.*

March 31, 2010 -- Construction continues on the 37,000 square foot Visitor and Education

Center at the Army Heritage and Education Center and is expected to be completed by the end of June according to Mike Perry, executive director of the Army Heritage Center Foundation. Currently work is focusing on putting up drywall and other interior work. After completion the AHCF will begin the formal process of offering the building as a gift to the Army.

The building is designed to serve as the entrance point of the Army Heritage and Education Center Campus and will include galleries, two multi-purpose rooms, a small cafeteria, a museum store and office space.