

Oktoberfest brings German heritage to post

Oktoberfest brings German heritage to post

Frankie and the Polka Knights provided Carlisle Barracks four hours of lively music at Oktoberfest Oct. 18.

Photo by Spc. Jennifer Rick.

Grace DeAngelo, age 7, gets her hand painted at the face painting station after playing the ring toss moments earlier. Hundreds of children came out to play games, jump in the bounce house and make crafts. Photo by Kelly Schloesser.

Dressed in camouflage and armed with guns and facemasks, participants in the Oktoberfest Paintball Tournament battled each other in the inflatable combat arena. Many onlookers gathered to watch the fate of the players as they ducked and dodged thousands of paintballs flying through the air. Photo by Kelly Schloesser.

Guests at Oktoberfest were treated to polka lessons given by Frank Hancock of Frankie and the Polka Knights, with help from his wife Maureen. Photo by Spc. Jennifer Rick.