Carlisle Barracks employees “took a knee” to complete mandatory training, be recognized for their hard work and dedication, welcome new members to the team and engage in a friendly competition as part of the U.S. Army Garrison Carlisle Barracks Organizational Day Sept. 21.

Held once a year, the event allows employees to come together to not only catch up on mandatory training, but to recognize the excellence around them.

“The men and women here are the backbone of Carlisle Barracks and are always working to deliver the world-class services that this post is known around the world for,” said Lt. Col. Sally Hannan, Garrison Commander. “It’s an honor to be able to recognize so many of your today.”

Hannan and the command team handed out length of service awards, Commanders Coins for Excellence and welcomed new employees to the garrison team.

A friendly competition featuring volleyball, washer toss, corn-hole and horseshoes closed the day with the event being won by the DFMWR team.
