Historically papers from the 1960-70s Military Assistance Command-Vietnam era are now available for review and research online. Digitization of the Army Heritage and Education Center’s major Army archive is underway with these critical documents available now.

The documents are part of the MACV Command historian's collection. This unique holding reveals much about all levels of the simultaneous high intensity and irregular warfare efforts in Southeast Asia, and the joint, combined, and inter-agency coordination occurring behind the scenes.

The MACV collection is just one of the 5,600 manuscript collections the AHEC is digitizing in the first effort to make available the historical materials that enhance and guide our understanding of current and future national security issues. Access the keyword searchable online system, by visiting arena link that you will find to right of this article.

The U.S. Army Heritage and Education Center engages, inspires, and informs the U.S. Army, the American people, and global partners with a unique and enduring source of knowledge and is an integral part of the U.S. Army War College. AHEC maintains the knowledge repositories that support scholarship and research about the U.S. Army and its operating environment. The mission statement of the Center reflects the convergence of library books, archival materials, and museum artifacts into a single collection of knowledge that supports learning and research, while prioritizing support to patron communities.
