This week, four United States Army War College students will participate in a panel discussion on contemporary intelligence issues at York College. One student will provide insights on women in the military to the American Association of University Women. Several dozen students will fan out throughout Cumberland County and beyond during the upcoming Veterans Day events.

The York College event is one of more than 300 speaking events supported by Army War College faculty, staff, and students each year. Across the southcentral Pennsylvania region, senior military officers and federal representatives share expert insights and experiences at civic organization events, in college and high school classrooms, veterans ceremonies, and more.

The key to any speaking event is engaging, well-informed speakers who can educate attendees and readily respond to any questions from participants. The Army War College Speakers Bureau can provide that expertise and experience.

The Army War College student body includes senior military officers of the Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force and Coast Guard, and senior civilian managers of federal agencies. With a career average of more than 20 years, USAWC students are diverse. Their Army War College studies span strategic leadership and management, international relations and regional studies, and contemporary military issues, among other topics.

Army War College students are able share their knowledge on U.S. operations overseas, leadership, U.S role in humanitarian assistance, ethics, and the role of the military in response to current events such as COVID19 and Chinese expansion.

USAWC speakers can engage in-person or virtually with:

- High Schools • Civic Clubs • National holiday events
- Colleges Classes & Clubs • Professional groups • Community groups
- Veteran Service Organizations • Government offices

Army War College speaker can address:

- Human dimensions of leadership • Managing organizational change
- Ethics & warfare • National security
- Cybersecurity • Military space operations
- Special Operations • Global hot spots and regional insights
- Reserve and National Guard missions.
