Effective Justice and Security Assistance in Conflict Assisted Areas: Guidelines for U.S Government Assistance Planning, Design, and Implementation, 2019-2020. The Stabilization Assistance Review (SAR), completed by the Departments of State (State) and Defense (DoD) and the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) in 2018, outlines a framework to maximize the effectiveness of U.S. stabilization efforts in conflict-affected areas. The SAR highlights the imperative for a revitalized approach to stabilization that is more selective and targeted in how the United States uses its resources to empower local authorities, advance core U.S. interests, mitigate risks, and enable strategic transitions. The SAR particularly emphasizes the importance of tailoring justice and security sector assistance in this regard.

“Jordan Gender Analysis and Assessment Final Report (USAID),” January 10, 2020.
USAID/Jordan is preparing to develop a new Country Development Cooperation Strategy (CDCS) for 2020–2025. To inform the new CDCS and future programming, USAID/Jordan commissioned Management Systems International (MSI) to contract a team of gender experts (the MSI Gender Team) to conduct a gender analysis and a gender assessment. This report documents the analysis and assessment findings and recommendations.
